While flames were consuming the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Fuller, two miles northwest of Gurnee one day last week, they were sleeping unconscious of their danger until rescued by their son Warren Fuller. The son and his wife live in a house adjoining the one which was destroyed and they were awakened by the crackling of the flames about 4 o'clock in the morning. By the time Mr. Fuller had succeeded in getting his parents out of the burning building, a volunteer fire department had reached the scene, because of a favorable wind the son's home and other buildings were saved. Cause of the fire is unknown. There was an oil stove in the wood shed but the Fullers were confident that it was not left burning Thursday night. The house was a seven room, frame structure and the loss is believed to be $6,000 or more.

Several lives were endangered a week ago Sunday evening when a high powered Reo left the road at the Gurnee bridge and plunged into the muddy waters of the Desplaines river 35 feet below. Fate was kind and only one person was injured, a Chicagoan, Leo Henderson, who was badly cut about the face. With him from what can be learned, were two women and another man. They were not hurt. The accident was attributed partly to the carelessness of another driver, who is said to have hogged the road and forced the Henderson machine into the pathway that runs between the new and old bridge. At the brink it wavered for a moment and plunged between the bridges, after having torn off a telephone pole in its aimless dive.

Supervisor Monahan of Lake Forest, rises to explain that is township, Shields, has been done an injustice by the report emanating from the board of supervisor's room relatives to expenditures for the paupers during the last quarter. Mr. Monahan says that in the total Shields township spent but $1500 for the quarter, as compared with $9,000 or more which Waukegan township spent during the same period. In the total the appropriation of $10,000 was exhausted during the past quarter in caring for the paupers of the county and according to Mr. Monahan, of that sum, $14,000 was credited to the North Shore town the inference being that most of it was spent in Shields township. This he explained was not the case as in the total only $1500 was used in caring for the paupers of his township.

Town Clerk George Beck has unearthed some mighty interesting historical papers concerning the early history of the town of Burlington in his task of moving the records of the town from the vault in the city hall, where they have been stored since the building was erected, to the vault in the new town hall on Washington street. Among the records are many valuable papers giving official action on roads, ditches, section lines, deeds etc. Those of practical use will of course, be preserved, while many of no value aside from interest will be destroyed. F. Schaefer of Madison, representing the State Historical society, was here Friday and went over the material, took a number of papers of historical value with him with the idea of writing a history of the town from them. According to records unearthed, the town of Burlington was organized at a meeting at the home of Hugh McLaughlin in 1842. Taxes for the entire township levied that year amounted to $298.02, and there remained in the treasury a balance of $25.42. That meeting voted to raise $150 for school purposes and $25 for the poor.

R. R. Lowdermilk of Deerfield, has taken a position in the office of T. A. Simpson, County Superintendent of Schools, for the summer. Mr. Lowdermilk for two years has been principal of the grammar school at Deerfield. His home is at Girard, Ill. The county superintendent each summer has a large number of state reports to compile, in addition to preparing for the fall and winter work and Mr. Lowdermilk will assist in this work.

MRS. STEWART AGAIN FORGIVEN BY HUSBAND

Oscar M. Stewart of Watervliet, who spent last week in Antioch searching for his wife, and returned to Waukegan on hearing that she had been found and placed in the county jail, has again forgiven his erring wife.

This is the second time in the history of the case as far as Antioch is concerned that this couple has been reconciled. They have agreed to drop all charges for the sake of their two small children, and Mrs. Stewart accompanied her husband back to Watervliet.

Van Horn, with whom Mrs. Stewart came to Antioch, is said to be returning to this village to engage in his work as a carpenter.

MAINTAINER ON HICKORY ROAD

County Superintendent Russell is authority for the statement that a maintainer was working on Hickory road. From reports on the condition of the road it does not look as if much headway is made.

Sheriff Ahlstrom was in town Monday night to take over the custody of a painter named Wood who was working around the lake and is said to have taken a sum of money from one of the cottages at which he was working. He was arrested by the Wisconsin authorities and turned over to Ahlstrom.

Business Men Attend Hearing On Bus Line

There was not such a large attendance at the Antioch Business Club meeting Monday night. Due to the absence of Mr. Abt, the president, the meeting was called to order by the Vice-President Adams. The minutes of the last meeting were read, and committees reports did not reveal anything. Mr. Arnold and Mr. Simons, officials of The North Shore Bus Line were on hand and Mr. Arnold gave a brief talk on what the North Shore expects to accomplish if they secured permission to come into this territory.

Mr. Arnold asked that a committee be appointed to go before the Commerce Commission Tuesday for a hearing showing cause why permission should be given to the North Shore Line to come to Antioch. The committee appointed by Chairman Adams included, Messrs. Abt, Watson, Bright, Stanton, Rothers, Message, Chinn and Bartlett.

The committee report that their request for the bus line seem to be met with favor by the commissioner that heard the petition, and that plea for an early decision would most likely be forthcoming.

The conditions on the road south of town were discussed and the outcome was that the committee that went to town Tuesday for the hearing was also instructed to go to Waukegan and see what could be done.

The committee decided after the hearing that it would change their plans and will hold a meeting soon to take action direct with the board of supervisors.

St. Paul Milk Train Wrecked at Round Lake

Train No. 160, the fast milk train of the Janesville division of the St. Paul railroad, was wrecked near the Long Lake station in Lake county, Monday night at 5:12 o'clock. Twelve freight cars, eleven of them loaded with milk for the Chicago market and the twelfth loaded with cattle, were derailed and demolished. One cow and a calf were killed.

The cars, splintered into kindling wood, were scattered over the right-of-way. Heavy steel rails were torn up for a distance of several hundred feet, being twisted into all sorts of fantastic shapes. The roadbed was torn up to such an extent that traffic was halted for more than 24 hours. Trains were halted at Rondout and passengers were transferred to the north shore line. The St. Paul has but a single track at this point.

SMALLPOX IS PUT ON ONE FARM THE COWS ON ANOTHER

Investigation of the smallpox run at the state line road, near Russell, Friday developed that one of the farms had been shipping milk to Chicago and another to Waukegan.

To meet the emergency Dr. H. C. Hoag, city health physician, vaccinated 15 people in the district, and placed all the cows on one farm and all the small pox cases on another. The plague cases are on the J. J. Denmore farm, and the cattle at L. G. Bennets.

A peculiar situation was met up with the same afternoon. Dr. Hoag found a case at 806 Lenox avenue, where a woman was recovering from smallpox who had not been quarantined. The home was fumigated and released.

In the future he stated that the health department will be asked to examine such cases. They usually prosecute for failure to report it. Dr. Hoag urges that everyone report cases as soon as possible to help keep down the growth of contagion.

EXPERIMENTAL FIELD SHOWS STRIKING EXAMPLE

The experimental field at the Geo. White is now ready for farmers to view a striking example of fertilizer work with rock phosphate for grain.

That year the Antioch Press listed quite a few rooms in town and out on the farms for rent for the three-day holiday, and will be glad to list any spare rooms for this fourth. Get your listings in early, and give description of conveniences.

Around Our Town

Smallest attendance yet at the Business club meeting. The business men in particular were extremely noticeable by their absence. The west side of Main street was very ably represented by Frank King, Mr. Reeves and Walter Chinn. The east side by—the press.

Mr. Arnold and Mr. Simons of the North Shore were here looking the town over again and incidentally to get a committee to go down to the hearing. They came over in one of their $11,000 busses.

Mr. Arnold says that the North Shore wants to be a part of the business interest of the town. He thinks the North Shore will do their share in advertising with the nice signs in front of their busses marked "Antioch."

This was told on the curb before the business meeting. Man announcing result of storm—Northwestern train 3 hours late on account of wash-out. St. Paul train 4 hours late due to bridge weakening. Soo Line train on time, cause unknown.

Herb Vos should be called off on this baseball stuff. He must be the Jinx on these rainy Sundays.

The men who think that the North Shore will hurt the business of the town are on a par with the men who said the cement road would hurt the town's business—We don't hear of anyone in favor of ripping the cement up.

Business was good over the week end except when the rain came.

It doesn't look as if we were going to have any baseball this year, but Herb Vos is not discouraged. He has secured the Hartford Giants for next Sunday. Those who have seen this classy bunch of colored comedians play ball will be on hand, and those who have not seen them in action should do so. They are worth the prices of any good vaudeville show.

FOX LAKE GOLF COURSE TO OPEN ON JULY FOURTH

Arrangements have been completed for the formal opening of the Fox Lake Golf & Country Club at Fox Lake, Illinois, on July Fourth, according to M. E. Krefl the professional who is supervising the work of putting in the bunkers end, and who will remain as the club's instructor. Those who have visited the course assert that it is one of the sportiest; they have seen with natural hazards that will prove a source of real delight.

The new golf grounds consist of 120 acres. For the present it will have but nine holes but the plan is to lay out the other nine holes next fall. Work of laying out the course has been under way since last October.

Postmaster H. L. Scott of Fox Lake is president of the new Club which has seventy-two members at the present time but which will have a total membership of one hundred fifty.

The new course overlooks Grass Lake with its world famous Lotus blossoms. It would have been difficult to have obtained a more beautiful location. Many of the members of the club have permanent homes in Chicago, Milwaukee and elsewhere but have summer homes at Fox Lake and vicinity.

Many Protests Over Condition of Roads Here

Detour to West Causes Many Mishaps During Storm Sunday

Work was started Wednesday to complete the road repairing at Loon Lake.

The road condition at Loon Lake over the holiday brought an avalanche of protests. The contractor on the job had left one half of the road open for traffic, but it was in such abominable condition that one could hardly go through without damaging some part of the car, even to the point of ripping spare tires off the back of the car.

Saturday night Charles Mohrman, who runs a roadside stand at the corner of Washington street and Waukegan Road, in an attempt to negotiate this bad stretch, it is said, took down the barrier to the fresh cement and in doing so hit the grader that was stationed at the edge of the road. Mohrman immediately instituted proceedings against the contractor and had the property attached, even going so far as to take possession of the private automobile belonging to the boss of the gang.

It was after this incident that the foreman closed the entire road and placed detour signs to the west, around the Fox Lake road and Armstrong road. Sunday, when the down-pour of rain came autoists started to have their troubles, and at one time it is stated that there were 123 cars lined up on the Armstrong road for one half hour while endeavors were being made to get a big car out of the ditch.

Mr. Russell, superintendent of the roads promised to put a man on this bad stretch at Loon Lake over the week end but none showed up. Monday he promised that this road would be opened Friday, as at that time the new cement laid would be ready for travel.

FARM BUREAU SOLICITS FUNDS FOR CLUB WORK

Members of the Farm Bureau are soliciting funds for work on the Boys' and Girls' club. They hope to raise $8400. Of this amount $3500 has already been raised. Lake Villa and Waukegan workers claim that they are going over their quota. Of the 160 boys and girls already enrolled in this club more than half of them are from Antioch Twp. Credit for this showup is due to the activities of Mr. Kutil and Miss Tiffany of the local high school.

VILLAGE PURCHASES OIL FOR THE STREETS

The village purchase of 100 barrels of oil arrived the first of the week. With the drying up of the roads the oil will be spread. It might be advisable to get a scraper on some of the streets first, especially on the end of Lake street near Main street. This is a dangerous intersection and it is hazardous enough to negotiate without encountering holes that temporarily throw the car out of control. There were several narrow escapes Sunday.

WOMAN STUCK OUT HER TONGUE AT OFFICER; CHARGE

Mrs. Ernest Pfannenstill of Round Lake, charged with having stuck out her tongue and called Motorcycle Officer B. C. Hamlin names was released when she finally agreed to apologize to the officer.

Appearing in justice court with her husband, she wore a man's cap, visor backward, and a mysterious woman in black followed them and kept her curswords in time with her step. Finally her words reached the ear of Sheriff Ahlstrom, who warned her that a nice cool cell in the dungeon would be awaiting her if he heard another word. From that time on only her lips moved, but she shook with anger.

The alleged tongue sticking occurrence took place when Mrs. Pfannenstill is charged with having speeded around a dangerous curve. "She stuck out her tongue and called me names when I stopped her to warn her," Officer Hamlin said.

"I apologize if I did that," the woman said.

"Discharged," said the court.

Zen of The Y.D.

A NOVEL OF THE FOOTHILLS

by Robert Stead

AUTHOR OF "THE COW PUNCHER," "THE HOMESTEADERS," "NEIGHBORS" ETC

COPYRIGHT BY ROBERT STEAD
SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Transley's hay-cutting outfit, after stacking 200 tons, is on its way to the big Y.D. ranch headquarters. Transley is a master of men and circumstances. Linder, foreman, is substantial, but not self-assertive. George Drask, one of the men, is an irresponsible chap who proposes to every woman he meets. Transley and Linder dine with Y.D. and his wife and daughter. Zen, Transley resolves to cut the South Y.D. "spite o' h—l an' high water" and a fellow named Lander.

CHAPTER II.—Drask proposes to Zen and is neatly rebuffed. Transley pitches camp on the South Y.D. and finds Lander's outfit cutting hay. Donelson Grant, Lander's manager, notices Transley that he is working under a lease from the legal owners and warns Transley off. All of which means war.

CHAPTER III.—Zen and Zen ride to the South Y.D. Y.D. is a natural vamp, not yet halter-broke and ripe for making. Y.D. has taken a liking to Transley. Zen holds Transley off and encourages Linder.

CHAPTER IV.—Zen enjoys the prospect of a race between Transley and Linder for her favor, but secretly laughs at both. She has another and more serious encounter with Drask. Y.D. makes machines are ruined by iron stakes set in the grass. Zen prevents open war with Lander. Transley half-way proposes and is turned off. Drask resolves to burn out the rival outfit.

CHAPTER V.—Fire blazes up in the Lander stacks. The Y.D. outfit hastens to aid the enemy. Zen rides on alone to help. The wind changes and the Y.D. people now have to fight the flames. Drask tries to shoot Zen, but she drowns him—or thinks she has. Grant overtakes her. In trying to get through the fire Zen is thrown and knocked senseless.

CHAPTER VI.—Zen comes to after several hours of unconsciousness to find herself in the dark. She has a strained ankle and both horses have run away. So she and Grant sit on a rock and tell their past lives. Grant, it appears, is a rich man's son who seems wealth in order to live his own life.

CHAPTER VII.—Y.D. and his men arrive after daylight. Naturally, in the excitement, buying is abandoned. Grant rides off. Transley goes to the nearest town, then returns and induces Y.D. to go into partnership with him in the contracting and building business. Transley sweeps Zen off her feet by the force of his masculine love-making.

The afternoon wore on, and as the day was warm she dismounted by a ford and sat down upon a flat rock close to the water. The rock reminded her of the one on which she and Grant had sat that night while the thin red lines of fire played far up and down the valley. Her ankle was painful a little so she removed her boot and stocking and soothed it in the cool water.

As she sat watching her reflection in the clear stream and toying with the ripple about her foot a horseman rode quickly down through the cottonwoods on the other side and plunged into the ford. It happened so quickly that neither saw the other until he was well into the river. Although she had had no dream of seeing him here, in some way she felt no surprise. Her heart was behaving hysterically, but she sat outwardly demure, and when he was close enough she sent a frank smile up to him. The look on his sunburned face as he returned her greeting convinced her that the meeting, on his part, was no less unexpected and welcome than it was to her.

When his horse was out of the water he dismounted and walked to her with extended hand.

"This is an unexpected pleasure," he said. "How is the ankle progressing?"

"Well enough," she returned, "but it gets tired as the day wears on. I am just resting a bit."

There was a moment of somewhat embarrassed silence.

"That is a good-sized rock," he suggested, at length.

"Yes, isn't it? And here in the shade, at that."

She did not invite him with words, but she gave her body a slight hitch, as though to make room, although there was enough already. He sat down without comment.

"Not unlike a rock I remember up in the foothills," he remarked, after a silence.

"Oh, you remember that? It was like this, wasn't it?"

"Same two people sitting on it."

"... Yes."

"Not like this, though."

"No. . . . You're mean. You know I didn't intend to fall asleep."

"Of course not. Still. . . ."

His voice lingered on it as though it were a delightful remembrance.

She found herself holding one of her hands in the other. She could feel the pressure of Transley's ring on her palm, and she held it tighter still.

"Hiding anywhere in particular?" he inquired.

"No. Just mooning." She looked up at him again, this time at close quarters. It was a quick, bright flash on his face—a moment only.

"Why mooning?"

She did not answer. Looking down in the water he met her gaze there.

"You're troubled," he exclaimed.

"Oh, no! My—my ankle hurts a little."

He looked at her sympathetically.

"But not that much," he said.

She gave a forced little laugh.

"What a mind reader you are! Can you tell my fortune?"

"I should have to read it in your hand."

She would have extended her hand, but for Transley's ring.

"No. . . . No. You'll have to read it in—the stars."

"Then look at me." She did so, innocently.

"I cannot read it there," he said, after his long gaze had begun to whip the color to her cheeks. "There is no answer."

She turned again to the water, and after a long while she heard his voice, very low and earnest.

"Zen, I could read a fortune for you, if you would not be offended. We are only chance acquaintances—not very well acquainted, yet."

She knew what he meant, but she pretended she did not. Even in that moment something came to her of Transley's speech about love being a game of pretense. Very well, she would play the game—this once.

"I don't see how I could be offended at your reading my fortune," she murmured.

"Then this is the fortune I would read for you," he said boldly. "I see a young man, a rather foolish young man, perhaps, by ordinary standards, and yet one who has found a great deal of happiness in his simple, unconventional life. Until a short time ago he felt that life could give him all the happiness that was worth having. He had health, strength, hours of work and hours of pleasure, the fields, the hills, the mountains, the sky—all God's open places to live in and enjoy. He thought there was nothing more."

"Well, then he found, all of a sudden, that there was something more—everything more. He made that discovery on a calm autumn night, when fire had blackened all the foothills and still ran in dancing red ribbons over their distant crests. That night a great thing—two great things—came into his life. First was something he gave. Not very much, indeed, but typical of all it might be. It was service. And next was something he received, something so wonderful he did not understand it then, and does not understand it yet. It was trust. These were things he had been leaving largely out of his life, and suddenly he discovered how empty it was. I think there is one word for both these things, and it may be, for even more. You know?"

"I know," she said, and her voice was scarcely audible.

"But it is your fortune I am to read," he corrected himself. "It has been your fortune to open that new world to me. That can never be undone—those gates can never be closed—no matter where the paths may lead. Those two paths go down to the future—as all paths must—even as this road leads away through the valley to the sunset. Zen—if only, like this road, they could run side by side to the sunset—Oh! Zen, if they could?"

"I know," she said, and as she raised her face he saw that her eyes were wet. "I know—if only they could!"

There was a little sob in her voice, and in her beauty and distress she was altogether irresistible. He reached out his arms and would have taken her in them, but she thrust her hands in his and held herself back. She turned the diamond deliberately to his eyes. She could feel his grip relax and apparently grow suddenly cold. He stood speechless, like one dazed—benumbed.

"You see, I should not have let you talk—it is my fault," she said, speaking hurriedly. "I should not have let you talk. Please do not think I am shallow; that I let you suffer to gratify my vanity." Her eyes found his again. "If I had not believed every word you said—if I had not—hoped—every word you said, I would not have listened. . . . But you see how it is."

He was silent for so long that she thought he was not going to answer her at all. When he spoke it was in a dry, parched voice.

"I beg your pardon," he said. "I should not have presumed."

"I know, I know. If only—"

Then he looked straight at her and talked out.

"You liked me enough to let me speak as I did. I opened my heart to you. I ask no such concession in return. I hope you will not think me presumptuous, but I do not plead now for my happiness, but for yours. Is this irrevocable? Are you—sure?"

He said the last words so slowly and deliberately that she felt that each of them was cutting the very rock from underneath her. She knew she was at a junction point in her life, and her mind strove to quickly appraise the situation. On one side was this man who had for her so strange and so powerful an appeal. It was only by sheer force of will that she could hold herself aloof from him. But he was a man who had broken with his family and quarreled with her father—a man whom her father would certainly not for a moment consider as a son-in-law. He was a foreman; practically a ranch hand. Neither Zen nor her father were snobs, and if Grant worked for a living, so did Transley. That was not to be counted against him. The point was, what kind of living did he earn? What Transley had to offer was perhaps on a lower plane, but it was more substantial. It had been approved by her father, and her mother, and herself. It wasn't as though one man were good and the other bad; it wasn't as though one thing were right and the other wrong. It would have been easy then. . . .

"I have promised," she said at last. She released her hands from his, and, sitting down, silently put on her stocking and boot. She was aware that he was still standing near, as though waiting to be formally dismissed. She walked by him to her horse and put her foot in the stirrup. Then she looked at him and gave her hand a little farewell wave.

Then a great pang, irresistible in its yearning, swept over her. She drew her foot from the stirrup, and, rushing down, threw her arms about his neck. . . .

"I must go," she said. "I must go. We must both go and forget."

And Denison Grant continued his way down the valley while Zen rode back to the Y.D., wondering if she could ever forget.

LOCAL PAPER WILL SAVE BUSINESS OF SMALL TOWN

A common remark nowadays is that the big towns are swallowing the little ones, that the automobiles and good roads are taking all the business to the big towns, that soon there will be nothing left of the small town but a depot, a grain elevator, a post-office, a garage and one or two little stores.

Fred Anderson, founder of the Anderson Department store in Cozad, Neb., has proven that this is not necessarily true. Cozad is a town of 1300 population, located near two larger towns. Fred Anderson started in business there with a capital of $3,000, $2,200 of it borrowed. That was in 1906. He started in a little frame building. Last year he did a business of $300,000 and his store now contains 3,700 square feet of space.

The first ten years he did little or no advertising and just dragged along. Then he started advertising in the local paper. He has been at it every year and his business has grown steadily to its present proportions. He gave all the credit to advertising. Last year he spent 1 1/2% of his income for advertising. He says he could afford to spend twice that much.

He has a duplicating machine and does lots of direct-by-mail advertising and he improves any and every opportunity for keeping his store before the public. But space in the local paper is his chief reliance. He never uses less than a page and sometimes, several pages in the same issue. He says he has bought the local paper many times but never got title to it. But he doesn't want title because it serves him so well as it is.

The Rosenbaum store in Harvard, Neb., another 1,300 town is an example of what can be done by giving the public what it wants and doing enough advertising to make the facts known. Harvard is within easy driving distance of four or five larger towns, one of 60,000, one or two of 12,000 or more and others much larger than it is, but this store draws trade for 50 miles or more.

These stores have proved that it is just as easy to follow the good roads in a Ford to a small town as a large one, provided the small town goes after the business. Mr. Anderson says that what they have done anyone can do by following the same methods. He says a merchant is justified in spending as high as 6 per cent of his income for advertising while he is starting. But no small town will ever get any place by bemoaning the fact that all of the business is going to the big towns and then doing nothing to prevent it. And no country town editor will help the situation any by printing editorials and news items encouraging such a belief.—Publisher's Auxiliary.

Illustration below shows "National" full automatic unit for electric power. Also built in other sizes for gas engine power.

Why We Recommend This Water System

FIRST, the "National" delivers water fresh from well to faucet. No water storage tank to freeze in winter; no stagnant water in summer.

Second, the "National" pump is the simplest on the market. It is the only fresh water system pump without springs to adjust, complicated parts such as needle valves, weight adjustments and lever mechanisms.

Third, the "National" does not require a pump house—may be installed in basement, garage or any other convenient place. Water from well, cistern, stream or lake can be pumped with the one power unit. To draw from more than one source, simply add a pump and lay necessary piping.

Fourth, the "National" gives full pressure fire-protection on a moment's notice. Inflate automobile tires from tank in thirty seconds.

Have you received the interesting "National" catalog describing full line for electric or gas engine power? If not, ask for a copy—or better yet drop in the next time you are in town and let us talk it over.

Revision of Individual Income Tax for 1924 Saves 25 Percent This Year

The following statement is issued by Mrs. Mabel G. Reinecke, Collector of Internal Revenue of the First District of Illinois.

Work on the administration of the revenue act of 1924 was begun immediately upon the passage of the new act. New regulations relating to the income, estate, excise, special, stamp and other taxes provided for are being prepared and will be issued at the earliest practicable moment.

Of immediate interest to tax payers is the provision for a 25 per cent reduction on the income tax of individuals for the year 1923. This 25 per cent reduction is not applicable to corporations. Many individual taxpayers, anticipating the reduction, paid at the time of filing their returns on or before March 15, 1924, only three-fourths of the amount reported on their returns. These taxpayers have nothing further to pay this year, unless additional tax is disclosed in the audit of their returns.

If one-fourth of the tax was paid on or before March 15, payment of one-half of a similar amount satisfied the June 15 requirement. The tax remaining unpaid after June 15, may be paid in equal installments on or before September 15 and December 15, respectively.

Taxpayers paying on the installment plan, desiring, now that the 25 per cent reduction is an accomplished fact, to pay the remainder of the tax in full, may of course do so, the advantage being to the Government as well as themselves in the elimination of book-keeping.

Taxpayers who paid in full the amount of tax shown on their returns will receive a refund of 25 per cent without requirement of filing a claim.

Returns under the 1924 act are required of every single person whose net income for 1924 was $1,000 or more or whose gross income was $5,000 or more and of every married person whose net income was $2,500 or more or whose gross income was $5,000 or more. Under the 1921 act returns were required of married persons whose net income was $2,000 or more. The 1924 act provides that if a married couple has an aggregate net income of $2,500 or an aggregate gross income of $5,000, each shall make a return, or the income of each shall be included in a single joint return, in which case the tax shall be computed on the aggregate net income. Married persons not living together, such as divorcees or persons separated by mutual consent, are classed as single persons, as are widows and widowers.

There is no change in the exemption for single persons, which is $1,000. Married persons, living together, and heads of families are allowed an exemption of $2,500, regardless of the amount of net income. Under the 1921 act the exemption for persons and heads of families was $2,000 if the net income was $5,000 or less and $2,000 if the net income exceeded $5,000. No change is made in the provision allowing a taxpayer, in addition to his personal exemption, a credit of $400 for each dependent if such dependent is under 18 years of age or incapable of self support because mentally or physically defective. This $400 credit is not allowed for the husband or wife of a taxpayer, though one may be totally dependent upon the other.

Formerly, a taxpayer's status on the last day of the taxable year determined the amount of his exemptions. If, the return having been made on a calendar year basis, he was married on December he was allowed the exemption granted a married person for the full year ($2,000 or $2,500, according to the amount of net income), though the ceremony may have been performed on that day. A person who became a widow or widower during the year and was not remarried on December 31 was allowed only a $1,000 exemption granted a single person. If during the year the head of a family ceased the support in his home of relatives, he was entitled only to the $1,000 exemption.

Under the revenue act of 1924, the status of the taxpayer is determined by apportionment in accordance with the number of months the taxpayer was single, married, or the head of a family. For example, a taxpayer who marries on July 1, 1924, will be entitled to an exemption of $1,750.

For the first six months of the taxable year he is classed as single, entitling him to an exemption of $500—one-half of the $1,000 exemption allowed a single person and for the last six months he is classed as married entitling him to an exemption of $1,250—one-half of the exemption allowed a married person. In such computations a fractional part of a month is disregarded unless it amounts to more than half a month, in which case it is considered a full month. These figures are based on the assumption that the return is made on the calendar year basis, as most are.

The normal tax rates are 2 per cent on the first $4,000 of net income in excess of the personal exemption and the credits for dependents, etc., 4 per cent on the next $4,000 and 6 per cent of the balance. The surtax rates range from 1 per cent on net incomes between $10,000 and $14,000 to 40 per cent on net income in excess of $500,000. Under the 1921 act the normal tax rates were 4 per cent on the first $4,000 of net income above the exemptions and credits and 8 per cent on the remainder of net income, while the surtax rates ranged from 1 per cent on the amount of net income between $6,000 and $10,000 to 50 per cent of the amount by which the net income exceeded $200,000.

The revenue act of 1924 contains a special provision for reduced taxes on "earned income," which did not appear in previous laws. All net income up to $5,000 is deemed to be earned income. On this amount the taxpayer is entitled to a credit of 25 per cent of the amount of the tax. For example, a taxpayer, unmarried and with no dependents, whose net income for 1924 is $5,000 would pay, without this reduction a tax of $80. From his net income of $5,000 he is allowed a personal exemption of $1,000; the tax of 2 per cent on the $4,000 of taxable income is $80, one-fourth of which, or $20, may be deducted.

In no case is the earned net income considered to be in excess of $10,000. A taxpayer, who receives a salary of $20,000, for example, can claim only $10,000 as "earned net income."

In the case of a married man with no dependents whose earned net income is $7,000, other income of $1,500, a total of $8,500, the tax, with out the benefit of the 25 per cent reduction would amount to $160—$8,500 less a personal exemption of $2,500 equalling $6,000 on which the tax on the first $4,000 at 2 per cent amounts to $80, and on the next $2,000 at 4 per cent, to $80. On the earned net income the tax amounts to $100—$7,000 less the exemption of $2,500 equalling $4,500 on which the tax on the first $4,000 at 2 per cent amounts to $80 and on the remaining $500 at 4 per cent, to $20. One fourth of the tax on earned net income, or $25, can be deducted from $160, leaving $135 as the total tax payable.

On a net income of $12,000 derived by a taxpayer, unmarried and with no dependents, entirely from securities, the tax, considering the first $5,000 to be earned, amounts to $420. Computed without the benefit of the deduction, it would amount to $440.

Earned income is defined as "wages salaries, professional fees, and other compensation for personal services actually rendered, but does not include that part of the compensation derived by the taxpayer for personal services rendered by him to a corporation which represents a distribution of earnings or profits rather than a reasonable allowance as compensation for personal services actually rendered. In the case of a taxpayer engaged in a trade of business in which both personal services and capital are material income producing factors, reasonable allowance as compensation for personal services actually rendered by the taxpayer, not in excess of 20 per centum of his share of the net profits of such trade or business, shall be considered as earned income, provided, that this allowance does not exceed $10,000." It is provided also that in no case shall the 25 per cent credit on earned income exceed 25 per cent of the tax computed in the ordinary manner. The limitation is applicable in cases where there is a loss, and the earned

New Honor For Northern Illinois

A gold medal and an embossed sheepskin certificate—visible proofs of another reason why northern Illinois may rightfully boast of being the greatest place in the world—have been received at the general offices of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, at Chicago.

They are the Charles A. Coffin awards, given the Public Service Company, winner in a competition with all the other electric light and power companies of America, as the company making the greatest achievements in the electrical field of the nation during 1923. With them came a check for $1,000, the cash award, which is to be added to the Employees' Benefit Association.

The medal, of 14 carat gold and more than three inches in diameter, bears on the obverse side the profile of Charles A. Coffin, founder of the General Electric Company. In commemoration of his work his company established the Coffin Foundation and confers the annual award.

On the reverse side of the medal is the inscription, "For distinguished contribution to the development of electric light and power for the convenience of the public and the benefit of the industry, awarded to the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, 1923."

The sheepskin certificate reads, "The Charles A. Coffin Foundation, established by the General Electric Company, for the advancement of the

pany of Northern Illinois in recognition of its distinguished contribution during the year Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-three to the development of electric light and power for the convenience of the public and the benefit of the industry."

Formal conferring of the medal and award was made recently at the national convention of the National Electric Light Association by its president, on behalf of the prize committee.

For Greater Reliability of Service

The Charles A. Coffin Foundation

In 1922 Charles A. Coffin, founder and creator of the General Electric Company, retired from active leadership of that Company.

As an expression of appreciation of Mr. Coffin's life work the Charles A. Coffin Foundation was created.

This Foundation consists of a fund, the income from which is to be utilized in encouraging and rewarding service in the electrical field.

A gold medal known as the Charles A. Coffin Medal is awarded annually to the electric utility operating company in the United States, which during the year has made the greatest contribution towards increasing the advantages of the use of electric light and power for the convenience of the public and the well being of the industry.

The Company receiving the Charles A. Coffin Medal receives also $1,000 for its employees benefit or similar fund.

THIS Company's policy of interconnecting its major power plants thereby increasing generation and distribution efficiency and safeguarding service to customers, was one outstanding activity which won for it the Charles A. Coffin Medal.

In this super-power development this Company was a pioneer.

The first link in a plan of interconnection between the large power stations of the Company, consisting of 27 miles of steel tower transmission line extending south from Waukegan, is now in operation.

This with other interconnected lines now projected will assure an inexhaustible supply of electrical energy to the customers of this Company. Through this super-power system of interconnected lines, reserve power can be brought from points where the demand is normal to other centers experiencing the strain of unusual demand, at any time.

This policy of the Company which enables it to provide for the increased demand of the future, as it grows side by side with the territory served, is in itself an expression of confidence in the continued development of Northern Illinois.

Will Dedicate Salvation Army Camp July 4th

When the Salvation Army dedicates its new fresh air camp at Upper Camp Lake, near Antioch, Ill., on the Fourth of July, friends and officers will come from several counties to join the celebration. The dedication program will be held in the afternoon at 2 o'clock. Commissioner William Peart will preside and give the dedication address.

An invitation has been issued by the Commissioner to all residents of Lake county and towns near Antioch to attend.

The fresh air camp, located on a 60-acre tract bordering on the lake, will be given over to the use of the poor children and their mothers, most of whom will come from the poverty stricken districts of Chicago. About 25 cottages have been completed to house them, with more to be built later. For the last few weeks construction has been rushed on a large dining and assembly hall, a bathroom and others necessary buildings for the accommodation of the children.

The camp will take care of 125 children. A new group of youngsters will arrive weekly for their outing, that as many as possible may have a glimpse of "country life" during the summer.

One week the camp will be given over to crippled children, who otherwise might never leave the city's narrow streets or know the delights of camp life.

Music by the Territorial Staff band, which has gained a country-wide reputation, will be one of the features of the dedication program.

"NO MOTHER TO GUIDE HER" AT THE CRYSTAL WEDNESDAY

"No Mother to Guide Her," a heart story put on the screen by William Fox, under the direction of Charles Horan at the Crystal theatre Wednesday. It is adapted for the stage play by Lillian Mortimer.

The plot deals with two young girls one, the daughter of wealthy parents, surrounded by everything that love and money can give her; the other, motherless and left to the care of a brutal step-father. The author has followed the fortunes of these two girls from their childhood and woven a strong and human series of events about their lives. The picture is brightened by many touches of homely humor and quaint bits of character drawing. It also contains a sensational train wreck that is good for a high power thrill. Much of the deep and searching emotional appeal that was the foundation of "Over the Hill" is apparent in "No Mother to Guide Her." Its characters are true and their actions are in strict accord with probability. The production is of superior quality in every particular.

Genevieve Tobin, as Mary Boyd, is a splendid selection for the part. She has youth, beauty and real dramatic ability. Dolores Rousse, the Kathleen Pearson, fits the character to perfection. Other important members of the cast are Lolita Robertson, Frank Wunderlee, Jack Richardson, Maude Hill and J. D. Walsh.

Royal Arch Masons to Hold Waukegan Day on Friday

Waukegan Chapter will on Friday, June 27, celebrate what they choose to call Waukegan Day.

This day is the fourth of a series, having been preceded by General Boilers Day, American Can Day, and North Chicago Day. And will be followed in September by Antioch Day.

The committee in charge are leaving nothing unsaid and nothing undone to make this one of the biggest days ever held in the local chapter. Delegations from as far north as Milwaukee and as far south as Chicago have signified their intention of being present.

Ceremonies commence at 1:30 p. m. and will include exaltation at 2:00, 4:00 and 8:00 p. m.

The ceremonies at 8:00 p. m. will be in charge of the Grand Officers of the State with Excellent Companion J. C. Ferrin M. E. G. H. P. of Illinois presiding.

Flag dedicatory ceremonies will be held at 6:00 p. m. at the East Front of the Temple. This ceremony was made possible by the splendid gift of $1000.00 by R. H. Hook to Waukegan Chapter.

Music for the occasion will be furnished by the High School Band under the personal direction of Prof. O. E. Graham.

The speaker for the occasion will be Excellent Companion Clarence E. Diver whose subject will be "Our Flag."

The Flag Committee consisting of J. L. Schad, G. E. Prentiss, and H. O. Edwards, have considered no expense too great, no effort too big, and no detail too small, to make this splendid occasion everything that it should be.

Come and see how well they have succeeded.

Sheridan Road between Grand ave., and Clayton street will be closed from 6:00 to 7:00 p. m. (By order of Chief Balz.)

Proper arrangements will be made for the safety of everyone.

At 7:00 p. m. a dinner will be served by the ladies of O. E. S. to all Royal Arch Masons. Their ability to serve is so well and favorably known among the Fraternity that no comment is necessary.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

So Bill got nipt in the stock market. How did it happen?

Oh, the usual case of a lamb mistaking himself for a fox.

GARDEN HINT

How did you manage to get the weeds down so well in your garden?

I blindfolded the neighbor's hens and they scratched out as many of the weeds as they did vegetables.

BANKERS DIRECT WAR ON CROOKS

Rising Crime Wave and Attacks on Banks Called Forth Increased Measures of Defense.

Criminal activities against banks have reached unprecedented proportions in recent months, according to a report made to the American Bankers Association by its Protective Committee, which directs the work of the Association aimed to combat criminal operations against banks.

"Sharp increases in crime perpetrated against banks definitely prove that instead of being broken the crime wave has risen to heights heretofore unknown to the banking fraternity," the report said. "Strangers continue to trick or otherwise inveigle unsuspecting banks into making generous contributions to their cause—a terrific toll which defies the imagination. Bank burglars and hold-up men have apparently redoubled their activities during the last six months. The number of criminals plying their trade in this field has grown to such proportions that there is now a fair sized army comprising this more desperate type of criminal, specializing against banks."

"Don't cash checks for strangers," is the warning emphasized by the Committee in view of the situation. It adds:

"We are gratified to report favorable results in a good proportion of cases investigated, which are due to the nation-wide activities of our detective agents through their staff of specialists in bank crimes. In Montana two fearless, well organized bands of professional rascals attacked more than a score of banks with such reckless abandon that the situation seemed beyond control. Realizing that conditions demanded prompt and drastic treatment, a trained crew of operatives were delegated to conduct a special investigation throughout the state. Nineteen men and two women were arrested. Of these four already are serving sentences, three are on trial, four are awaiting trial and the rest were freed for lack of evidence."

"A similar round-up was carried out in Oklahoma. Conditions in other states similarly bad were investigated and with the co-operation of local, state and federal authorities and the co-ordinated activities of members the percentage of arrests and convictions has materially increased."

The report pointed out that figures covering bank burglaries over a period of thirty years showed that 1,609 banks, members of the Association and entitled to its protective services, have been attacked, suffering losses aggregating $1,196,000, while non-members to the number of 2,357 were burglarized and suffered $4,250,000 in losses. The point was also brought out that there are only half as many non-members as members, so that these losses among them represent an excessively high rate as compared with members.

Aid Diversified Farming
A state bank of Granville, North Dakota, that is encouraging diversified farming among its farmer patrons, has purchased some purebred sires for the benefit of its customers. The bank realizes the necessity of good sires for the dairy herd, and has set aside a certain amount of money to be used in having a man look up animals and ship them to Granville.

Bankers of Lee County, Mississippi, are employing a dairy trained expert to give his whole time to the development of dairying. His salary and expenses are paid by the banks of the county in proportion to their deposits. This expert helps to arrange for loans to purchase cows, sees that the farmers have shelter and feed to care for the cattle, and advises with them in figuring out rations and in determining what crops to grow. He makes special engagements to attend scrub bull funerals.

Friday evening quite a party of friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Buschmann gathered at their home on Depot street. The evening was spent in games and pleasant converse which was enjoyed by all present.

HEAVY STORM FROM NORTH HITS ANTIOCH

The storm that hit Antioch Friday morning was the tail ender of a young cyclone that hit up north. Up at Waukegan things in general were mused up considerably.

Antioch did not get so much of the storm as the east end of the county, Waukegan was hit quite bad, the deluge of water that fell being to much for the sewer system and causing the flooding of cellars in several places.

Petitions are being circulated in Grayslake to secure signatures of property owners whose property fronts on the streets that are to be paved. Three petitions have been out the past week—one for property owners on Westfield Place, one for Center avenue and the other for Lake street. More than fifty per cent of the property owners on these streets have signed the petition favoring the improvement. There are yet some who have not been approached, who are known to be in favor of the paving project.

Obituary

The following article was taken from the Kerville Mountain Sun of Kerville, Kerr county, Texas of Thursday, June 19, 1924:

H. P. Fairman, known as "Podger", passed away at 7:45 Sunday evening at Hillcrest Sanatorium after an illness of several years. Death was caused by heart displacement, which had confined him to his bed for more than a month.

Mr. Fairman was born September 15, 1872, at Antioch, Ill., the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Fairman. For many years he was in the employ of the Bell Telephone company in Chicago, St. Louis and in various points in Illinois. It was while in their employ that his health broke down and he was sent to a health resort by that company.

He came to Kerville in September 1917, and entered Hillcrest Sanatorium. He had regained strength continuously since coming here, but during the past several months his health again began to go down grade, culminating in his final sickness and death.

During the time he was in Kerville Mr. Fairman had written for several newspapers and magazines and sold a number of short stories. He was local correspondent for three large Texas dailies during the past several years and helped to gain wide publicity for Kerville through his news stories in those publications.

He was better known to many people as "A. Podger," under which name he contributed baseball stories and a column of "Abbreviated Pick-shun" to The Mountain Sun until more than a year ago.

The deceased numbered his friends here in hosts. He was by nature kind-hearted and performed many helpful deeds for friends and for others who were fighting disease as he had done. His loss is truly felt by all who knew him.

In addition to his widow, Mrs. Gertrude Fairman of Chicago, he is survived by a daughter, Miss Helen Ann Fairman, and three sons, John H., Paul Warren and Joseph Edward, all of Chicago. Three sisters, Miss Mable Fairman and Mrs. B. B. Crownover of Benedict, Neb., and Mrs. Burt McDonald Aurora, Ill., and four brothers, W. H. Fairman, Waukegan, Ill.; Philip R. Fairman, Desplaines, Ill.; and Edwin Bruce Fairman of Philadelphia, Penn., also survive.

The body accompanied by his widow, left Monday afternoon to his oldhome at Antioch, Ill., for burial.

The Sun joins with many friends in extending heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved ones.

THREE ADDITIONAL PRECINCTS ARE CREATED IN COUNTY

The county board on Tuesday afternoon took action which creates additional precincts in the county, which makes a total of 53. Changes were made in Shields township increasing the number of precincts from four to six, and West Deerfield has been divided into two precincts.

This action was taken because of the fact that such a heavy vote was cast in these precincts the clerks and judges in some instances worked 33 hours without cessation.

The precincts as re-districted and the judges are as follows:

Shields 1—City hall, Deerpath ave., Lake Forest. E. J. Monahan, John Falvey, Joseph E. Anderson.

Shields 2—Village hall, Lake Bluff. Ed. Mawman, Leo. B. Geraghty, Wm. Reese.

Shields 3—City hall, North Chicago. T. V. Murphy, J. C. Strong, John Nelson.

Shields 4—Gorton school, Illinois Road and McKinley avenue. Lake Forest. Joe Lindenmeyer, William Dickinson, George Bolan.

Shields 5—Young Men's club, Park recreation building, Lake Forest. Jas. Kelly, Wm. Harding, Wm. Kemp.

Shields 6—Winter club, N. Sheridan road, Lake Forest. J. Spellman, J. E. Fitzgerald, John Appelton.

West Deerfield 1—Edward Blennel store, Deerfield. P. J. Duffy, William Steffer, Wordman Todd.

West Deerfield 2—Town hall, Deerfield. James O'Connor, John Weber, Raymond Clavey.

No changes were made in the Waukegan precincts.

The new list of judges contains women for the first time, also women have served heretofore as substitute judges and clerks of election. The women judges named are: Mrs. Bessie Trieger, Antioch No. 1; Mary B. Blake, Warren township; Mrs. J. B. Morse, Libertyville No. 1.

ELEVATED LINE WILL BE EXTENDED TO WAUKEGAN

The electric line extension now under way in Evanston will be run thru to Waukegan instead of terminating at Dempster street, Niles Center, as originally planned, it was revealed Monday by Chairman Samuel Insell of the Chicago Rapid Transit Co.

The elevated trains will be operated only as far as Dempster street, but the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee trains will continue on. The roadway between Dempster street and the present elevated structure near Howard avenue will be owned jointly by the Rapid Transit and the North Shore companies. This proposal is to be voted on August 19, by the stockholders of the former company.

The project is expected to be completed early next year and, the announcement said, will open up and develop a rapidly growing new territory.

Following the merger, the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee will have $4,000,000 of first mortgage bonds outstanding, it being planned to buy in the additional $60,000 now outstanding. The authorized bond issue is 10,000,000. Then it is proposed to issue $5,500,000 bonds which will be pledged as additional security for an issue of first and refunding mortgage bonds, which will be pledged as additional security for an issue of first and refunding bonds, which will be sold.

That part of the line between the Howard street elevated station, Niles City and Dempster street, Evanston will be used jointly with the Chicago Rapid Transit company, which operates the elevated lines.

MANY COUNTIES

Two thousand eight hundred and eighty-two cattle reacted to tuberculosis tests in Illinois during May according to M. H. Peterson, in charge of the tuberculosis eradication department of the Illinois Agricultural association, and were killed.

A total of 49,051 cattle were tested during May according to Farm Advisor Doerchuk.

Six more counties have made applications for the eradication of bovine tuberculosis. They are Dekalb, Tazewell, Henderson, Warren, McDougal and Cumberland. The total number of counties testing in Illinois now is 56. Five or six more are expected to make applications soon according to Mr. Peterson.

NEW CHAMPION BUTTER COWS

Illinois' new champion among Holstein cows for the production of butter in one year as a junior two-year-old is Woodell Maud Beets Pontiac of the H. M. Wood herd at Delavan, according to the advanced registry department of The Holstein-Friesian association of America. Her record is 20,400.4 pounds milk containing 683.11 pounds butterfat equivalent to 853.8 pounds butter.

ALL AT SEA

A girl at a public library inquired if "The Red Boat" was in.

"I don't think we have the book," she was told.

"Oh, excuse me," said the girl. "I made a mistake. The title is 'The Scarlet Laundress'."

After a search, the library assistant reported that no book with that title was listed in the card catalog.

"But I am sure you have the book," the girl insisted. Suddenly she opened her handbag and produced a slip of paper on which something was written. Then she blushed. "Oh, I beg your pardon," she said. "It's 'The Ruby Yacht' by a man named Omar, I want."

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

STOP, LOOK AND LISTEN

"Aunt Emmy," said Jane, "I wish you would make something clear to me. Last night Mr. Wilkins and Ted were talking about bonds. Mr. Wilkins said a lot about 'public utility bonds,' whatever that means, and seemed to think that they are the greatest things ever, so I thought maybe Ted and I might buy one with that $1,000 Daddy gave us for a wedding present, but I'd like to know more about them first."

"You have the makings of a financier, Jane," laughed Aunt Emmy, "since you have sense enough to stop, look and listen before you buy. I like public utility bonds, too—that is, good ones. They are bonds issued by corporations that serve the public with something useful, hence the name, public utility. The gas company, the electric light and power company, the telephone and similar companies are public utility corporations. Their business is based on real public needs. But it is also essential that they be well managed to be a good investment."

"Of course there are other bonds equally good. Always bear in mind that when you buy a bond you loan money to the corporation whose bond you buy. You do not buy a share of the business, as you do when you buy stock. The bond you buy bears interest, and this interest must be paid to you before the company can pay out a single cent in dividends. Nevertheless bonds must be carefully selected with the advice of someone who knows."

"How do you think one can know if a company is safe or not, Aunt?" asked Jane.

"Well, that is difficult. But I should say that if a company whose bonds you fancy has been doing a good business for ten years and has not failed to pay a dividend during that time the chances are that it will keep on doing as well unless something entirely unforeseen occurs. The best thing to do is to check up your own opinion with your banker. Once you have bought bonds in any corporation don't put them away and forget them. Seek your bank's advice from time to time and keep informed of the progress of the corporation you are interested in. If you see anything in the papers that alarms you in any way go at once to your bank and ask their advice about selling out and reinvesting in something else. Banks have facilities for keeping in touch with financial conditions, and they are always glad to help."—ANNE B. AYRES.

THE IMPORTANCE OF FOREIGN TRADE

For many decades we have produced a surplus of products of the farm that has been sold in foreign countries. As long as we continue to produce a surplus above domestic consumption, it is a prime necessity that there be a market for it. It is true that this surplus is but a fraction of our total production. Nevertheless, it exerts an effect upon the price of the entire output which is entirely disproportionate to its relative size. A country store-keeper may sell a hundred straw hats at a fair margin of profit, but the twenty which he may not be able to sell at all will wipe out the profit on the entire stock. The same thing is true of wheat, of corn, of any product of the farm.

It is true that we might exist without foreign trade, that we might depend exclusively upon domestic consumption. To do that, however, would require a complete reorganization of our whole commercial and industrial structure, a reorganization which would require years of time and which would entail losses beyond calculation. The more reasonable alternative is to take steps toward the restoration of a normal foreign market.—Walter W. Head, President American Bankers Association.
